Meet Marge. She’s over 65 and enrolled in Original Medicare. She’s had some health issues recently and has made a few trips to the hospital. Detail the amount she paid under Part A for each scenario below.

Scenario #1

Marge contracted influenza on Jan. 1 and spent three days in the hospital as an inpatient. She was then discharged on Jan. 4 and sent home.

Marge pays:
• $

Scenario #2

Marge has really bad luck and contracted the flu again on April 1. She develops serious complications from the flu that require an extended hospitalization. She’s hospitalized for 65 days and discharged on June 5.

Marge pays:
• $

• $
Scenario #3

After finally getting over her flu complications, Marge runs into more bad luck. She is injured in a car accident and heads back to the hospital on July 10. Remember, her first day in the hospital to treat her injuries is technically her 66th day in the hospital for this benefit period.

She’s in the hospital for 10 days and discharged on July 20.

Marge pays:
• $